Dear Christie:

It's been such fun reviewing one very happy day last year. Here's how I remember it...

A woman I didn't recognize and had never met stood at the podium to speak at an event planned for the National Day of Prayer in Washington, D.C. Her radiant smile shined Jesus. There was tender love in her voice for those she addressed as she spoke about the privilege of meeting in a secret place every day with her Savior. After the meeting, I pushed my way to where she stood.

"I just want to meet you because you radiated the love of Jesus today in an amazing way," I told her. "Thank you for ushering us into God's presence with your engaging style and practical suggestions for passionate prayer."

Of course, that woman was you...a captivating Christ follower with joy that literally warms up a room. I have been blessed by your solid theology, your winsome witness for the Lord Jesus, and your faithfulness to your family. You and Jerry operate as a team. And, after meeting your children and their spouses and grandchildren, I am refreshed to see the powerful influence of your godly mothering and grandmothering.

Christie, you make me want to spend more time with Jesus. I want the joy that you have found in the secret place of prayer. You're real. And you've helped me to better love the God who lights up your life as well.

Sincerely in Christ,

Bobbie Wolgemuth
